

August 10, 2008

Stop & Shop Alerts Customers to Voluntary Recall of Stop & Shop Brand Tuna Salad

Product recalled due to possible listeria contamination

The Stop & Shop Supermarket Company has announced a voluntary recall of Stop & Shop tuna salad sold in 12 ounce pre-packaged containers and tuna salad sold at the service deli because it has the potential to be contaminated with listeria monocytogenes. Upon being notified of the recall by the supplier, Stop & Shop immediately removed all 12 ounce pre-packaged containers of Stop & Shop tuna salad and affected product from the service deli case.

The following products are affected by this recall:

- 12 oz. Pre-packaged Stop & Shop Tuna Salad, UPC #0-688267-06663, Sell-by-date: August 19, 2008
- Stop & Shop Tuna Salad (Service Deli), UPC #20880380000, Sell-by-date (s): July 28, 2008 thru August 19, 2008

Stop & Shop has received no reports of illnesses associated with consumption of this product.

Listeria monocytogenes is a bacteria that can cause flu-like symptoms, like high fever, severe headache, neck stiffness and nausea. Although healthy people rarely contract listeriosis, it can be very serious for those who are pregnant or those with weakened immune systems, such as infants, the elderly and persons with HIV infection or undergoing chemotherapy. Infected pregnant women may experience only a mild, flu-like illness, but infections during pregnancy can lead to miscarriage or stillbirth.

Customers who have purchased the affected products should discard any unused portions or bring their purchase receipt to Stop & Shop for a full refund. Consumers may call Stop & Shop Customer Service at (800) 767-7772 Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for more information. Customers can also visit the Stop & Shop website at www.stopandshop.com.

About Stop & Shop

The Stop & Shop Supermarket Company, based in Quincy, Massachusetts, employs more than 59,000 associates and operates 389 stores throughout Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire, New York and New Jersey.